

LUXURIOUS

INTERIORS

BREATHTAKING HOMES BY AMERICA'S FINEST INTERIOR DESIGNERS

Pfuner Design

Florida

As with most creative people, Renata Pfuner has her likes and dislikes, her favorite styles and those she'd be perfectly content to avoid. But Renata has also intentionally avoided developing a signature style, choosing instead to see each building, owner, and set of design parameters as a unique opportunity to do something fresh, amazing, and unexpected. While she is open to designing within all genres, she is most known for her glamorous modern designs infused with a distinct European flavor. Developing havens that best express their residents' aesthetics and lifestyles is no doubt an innate ability, but Renata has further enhanced the skill by regularly exposing herself to new ideas through world travels and close involvement in the design community. She views the art of interior design through a truly unique lens.

Left: Smoke and mirrors are all part of the magic in the stairway and dining area, where grey shades appear from the stainless steel on the stairway railings, to the silver leaf finish and velvet upholstery on an elegant set of dining chairs.

Photograph by Craig Denis

Above Left & Facing Page: As the heart of the home visible from virtually every room, the space needed to fascinate, amaze, and awe. Design continuity comes from repeated and reinterpreted themes, the large dining area contains high-backed chairs with a random line design we selected to keep the space active despite repetition. A palette of white, grey, and silver with some light woods, accentuated by mirrors and glass, engenders depth and drama. High ceilings and walls necessitated larger-than-life components, including the eye-catching chandelier and the mirror embedded into the stone wall.

Above Right: A white-lacquer Italian table with a mirrored inset paired with chairs that are shaped with an airy and festive cutout design suggest a bit of fun and whimsy in the breakfast area.

Right: The private elevator lobby, as the transition into the residence, functions as the first and last impression. To set the mood, I created atmosphere through white textures, ceiling designs, and varied lighting, as well as large mirrors and a grand console table. The expansive space, careful not to be too minimal, captures a certain sensation without revealing too much.

Photographs by Craig Deris

Above: The living, entertainment, and family room aims to be sophisticated and comfortable at once. Orange and yellow accent the main white tones, and the clean lines of the sectional and custom-made built-in contribute to an uncluttered but inviting space. As with other areas in the house, the ceiling received unique details and designs and a distinctive chandelier complements and adds sparkle to the room.

Left: Also a centerpiece in the home, the bar area flows with the other rooms and contains a wealth of functionality, but it also enjoys extra touches.

Facing Page: A room without texture and contrast is simply incomplete, which is why I created drama through lighting and ceiling design in the master suite. One wall of the bedroom is completely glass, overlooking the dining room, and a privacy curtain can close off the space when necessary. To maximize views and create the illusion of an endless panorama, I kept the design simple and instead found complexity in layers of details: the headboard, the lighting, the furniture, the mirrors, the vaulted ceiling, and concealed lighting. In the master bath as well, interesting textures explore new dimensions of a white-on-white palette.

Photographs by Craig Denis

